ADMIRE BOOSTING SPIRIT OF THE WEST.

"If the people of Northeastern Michigan were all as much given to boosting their own locality as I found those of the drouth stricken regions of Montana I believe we wouldn't have room for the settlers who would be rushing our way," said T. F. Marston, secretary of the Development bureau, who returned last week from a trip to Miles City and Billings, Mont., where he went to interview stockmen on the subject of shipping their stock to Michigan pastures. "In spite of the fact that they have had no rain there since last May and their ranges are so dry that a Michigan cattleman couldn't see where there was a pound of nutriment for their animals, they are still outwardly hopeful and you won't find a man who, on the first interview, is willing to admit that the outlook is at all hopeless and that, unless they have heavy fall rains, they are doomed to serious loss.

"It was only after repeated interviews that I found any of them willing to admit that things looked bad, that those who have pasture elsewhere are shipping to these new fields and many of those who have no pasture are shipping part of their herds to market. The general comment is that 'we'll come out all right yet,' but in the fact of that when I asked a Billings banker what would happen if they didn't have fall rains his reply was, 'We'll all go to hades together.'"

Mr. Marston has made a report on his visit covering some of the matters of interest to Michigan people. He says he does not believe that it will be profitable for them to attempt to buy stock at the western ranges at this time for the people are still hopeful that they will have rains, and prices are freight charge are high. If the drouth continues, however, they will begin shipping to the stock yards at St. Paul and Chicago within a short time and in such quantities that the market will be almost sure to break and Mr. Marston believes these markets will be the place to buy.

He does not think there will be much chance to induce the western stockmen to ship their herds to Michigan and lease ranges here this year, although they may possibly send representatives here to look over the territory with a view of shipments here another year, should there be a repetition of present drouth conditions.

life? And in what other period have you made so many important beginnings in action and in bodily control and care? Try to enumerate the knowledge gained and the beginnings made in these years.

Was not the sweet-souled Bishop Comenius right when he said that everything one ever knows or can do has its beginning in these years? And Jean Paul Richter, when he claimed that the child sees more new things in these six years playing about the door of its village home than the man can see traveling around the world, and learns more from mother and nurse than it will afterwards learn from tutors and professors in college and university?

Was not Richter right again in his belief that the most important thing that can come into the life of any individual is a happy, joyous, active childhood? No fortune, he thought, of material wealth which parents might leave their children could ever compensate for the loss of such joyous activity in their early life.

Rousseau and Pestalozzi were right in their new conception of education as growth and development through self-activity rather than the storing of the memory with the forms and phrases of knowledge. And Froebel was equally right in his estimate of the value of socializing the life of little children through the proper organization and direction of their spontaneous plays and other activities. Since he discovered the kindergarten thousands of men and women have worked out its technique far beyond his ability, until it has come to be regarded among thoughtful educators as one of the most valuable parts of our system of education. The kindergarten is good for children of all classes, for the rich and poor; for black and white; for native and foreign born—for many reasons probably more valuable for the children of the foreign-born among us than for others.

The growth of the kindergarten in this country has been greater in the last ten years than in the 40 years preceding, but still only one-tenth of the children of kindergarten age are in kindergartens—about one-fourth of those who live in cities and towns. Wherever there is a kindergarten the children attend gladly. No compulsion is required. The happiness and the joy of it are sufficient. Then why not provide kindergartens for all? The only excuse is economy. But, it is good economy to save a few dollars at the price of neglect of the children at this most important age? Is your community awake to its responsibility? Is it doing its full duty? Are there kindergartens in all your schools?

Help to reach all the parents of the country by cutting this out and passing it on to a friend.

Back Giving Out?

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys. It shows in a dull, throbbing backache, or sharp twinges when stooping. You have headaches, too, dizzy spells, nervous feeling and irregular kidney action. Don't neglect it—there is danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have saved themselves more serious ailments by the timely use of Doan's.

A Michigan Case

G. T. Doeburg, R. R. 1, Tenth St., Holland, Mich., says: "I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills several years ago, for at that time my kidneys were causing me a lot of annoyance by acting irregularly. I took a box of Doan's and I am now a lot better. Doan's relieved me and I know they are all they are claimed to be."

SIX YEARS LATER Mr. Doeburg said: "I still use Doan's when my kidneys trouble me and they always give relief."

June Advice.

Bishop Bristol, in an address in Chattanooga, was giving advice to prospective bridegrooms.

"Whatever you do," said the bishop, "don't spoil everything on your wedding day by telling your wife what fine pies your mother used to make. Swallow the bride's creation, even if you have to break the crust with a sledge hammer, assure her it's a culinary chef d'oeuvre, and then take a pill on the sly."

Putting It Up to Grandpa.

Howard had not had his breakfast one morning when his grandfather drove up in his car. Howard wanted very much to go along, but his mother said: "But you haven't had your breakfast yet, and grandpa doesn't want to wait."

IF THIN AND NERVOUS, TRY PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

When one stops to consider the host of thin people who are searching continually for some remedy by which they may increase their flesh, it is not surprising that the name of Nitro-Phosphate is mentioned so often. The scientific basis of this remedy is the fact that the human system is very largely composed of phosphorus. Experiments on humans and animals have shown that a deficiency of phosphorus in the blood results in a weak, nervous, and thin condition. Nitro-Phosphate is a powerful agent in restoring the phosphorus content in the blood, and thus it produces a healthy change in the body and mind. Nervous tension disappears, vigor and strength are regained, and the whole body soon takes on a healthy and robust appearance. It is a remedy for the thin and nervous, and it is a remedy for the weak and the whole body soon takes on a healthy and robust appearance. It is a remedy for the thin and nervous, and it is a remedy for the weak and the whole body soon takes on a healthy and robust appearance.

CAUTION—While Nitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

Lake Margrethe, formerly known as Portage Lake, located three miles west a reputation of being the finest, all-

Besides having a splendid, safe bath-it is producing fine fishing. Every-hundreds of green and black bass and pike. Several pike were landed durthree to twelve pounds, and one 14-and build on. Several new structures have been built at this lake every

to come the entire beach will be lined with comfortable, summer homes.

Council K. of C. No. 1982 attended the institution of a Knights of Columbus council at West Branch last Sunday. At that time the initiation of a charter class of about 100 members also took place. Clark's orchestra of this place went along to furnish the music, when a program of addresses were given. There were delegations from the different cities both north and south of West Branch present on that day, and from reports the affair was a success.

The Bureau of census at Washington has appointed George E. Benner of Clare, Clare county, census supervisor of the tenth district of Michigan, of which district Crawford county forms a part. There are 23 counties in this district and the population in the year 1910 was 323,418. The population of the village of Grayling was 1775. A new census will be taken next year at which time these figures are sure to be changed. The Village of Grayling will probably reach close to 2,500.

Lake Margrethe, formerly known as Portage Lake, located three miles west of Grayling, is fast making for itself a reputation of being the finest, all-around lake in Northern Michigan.
Besides having a splendid, safe bathing beach and delightful shore, clean, clear water and invigorating climate,
it is producing fine fishing. Everybody catches fish, and the variety run from calico bass, perch, etc., to hundreds of green and black bass and
pike. Several pike were landed during the past week, weighing from three to twelve pounds, and one 14-pounder was reported. People who visit here, very often fall for buying a cottage, which is almost impossible to buy as there are none for sale, and the next best thing is to buy a lot and build on. Several new structures
have been built at this lake every season of late and no doubt in time to come the entire beach will be lined
with comfortable, summer homes.

again next summer but for a longer stay. The Mortensons were residents

IN THE RAIN

By S. GODFREY.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

Ralph Allen left the train at Carlisle Junction. A heavy rain drove and splattered viciously on the platform; he buttoned his mackintosh closely around him and stepped under the projecting roof of the little station. The village was a mile distant and the prospect of foundering through the downpour afoot was not agreeable. He muttered some adjectives relative to the weather, and was surprised to hear a female voice close to him ask:

"I beg your pardon; can you tell me the means of getting to the village at once? Of course, I mean a carriage." Ralph threw his cigar, freshly lighted, across the track, then wondered why. He was not in the habit of discarding cigars upon being addressed by persons with whom he was not acquainted. He answered:

"Don't know, I'm sure. I hope—er, a carriage can be secured. I had decided to wait inside for a time."

He opened the door and bowed as she passed through, observing that her attire was faultless, and tried to imagine what brought her to this deserted country station. Ralph inquired of the ticket agent if he could get a carriage to drive to town at once, and being informed in the negative, seated himself beside his new acquaintance.

"There doesn't seem to be any way out of it," he said, "unless we walk."

"Then I suppose I must wait for the rain," she said.

"We? If you do not object," he corrected. "I should be honored to act as porter," glancing at her valise, "and escort."

"Thank you indeed, if you will be so good, though I fear it would be presuming too much upon your kindness."

"The kindness will lie entirely in your allowing me to assist," he said. Through the hazy transparency of the veil he could distinguish handsome outlines, and eyes that shone and laughed. There could be no necessity for wearing it indoors. Her voice sounded as the voice of one he had heard often, somewhere. A suggestion of a soft, modulated drawl was pleasing. Who among his feminine acquaintances possessed that peculiarity of accent. Suddenly he turned toward her and scrutinized her intently.

It was in London, three years before, he recalled, that he had met her and after meeting her he had postponed his return to New York. Her party traveled to Paris and over the continent, and singularly, his plans took him to the same places. When they parted he had promised to write. But he omitted to include his street address in his missive, and she had no means of learning the location of his office. A mustache adorned the lip which had been smooth when she knew him in Europe.

"I've run out here on some live stock business, and as I'm not expected, there's no one here to meet me. Other-wise my transportation facilities would be entirely at your service."

"If it comes to that, it is I who should excuse myself for being here," she replied. "I have been invited to the wedding of a college friend, and thinking I could not come sent regrets. Then at the eleventh hour I managed to get away," smiling, "and so—"

"And so we're here."

She looked at him questioning. He wished he had an invitation to that wedding. He only said:

"The rain has ceased. Shall we start?"

"Certainly, if you wish."

"I ought to introduce myself. My name is Ralph Allen. My home is in New York." The statement did not sound very smooth, but he had opened a subject.

"I am very glad to have met you, Mr. Allen. I can't thank you enough for bothering to help me tonight."

"I should like you, please, not to speak of that again. Once for all, it is a privilege. But it is so pleasant now. And I was thinking of a girl I knew once. She was very much like you. That's why I speak of her. You—you don't mind?"

"No; I should like to hear," she said slowly, looking away from him. Then he continued:

"She was in England several years ago, and we met." He spoke as though recalling memories to his own mind, and did not look at the woman at his side. "I only knew her a month, and perhaps I shouldn't have taken the liberty. But I couldn't help thinking—so much of her."

"And you?"

"I had to return to New York. It would not have been fair to tell her so soon."

"You think so? Selfish."

"I wrote to her, and she would have answered, I thought, but I never heard from her."

"Tell me, do you make a practice of leaving your correspondents to guess at your address? She—she may not have known where to write?"

"I don't understand. She knew I lived in New York."

"You might have been thoughtful enough to mention your residence or your office number."

"That was like her, that remark. That's why I told you. Do you think she cared? Do you think she cares now?"

"Why—why don't you ask her?"

The satchel fell to the walk. He sought both her hands and held them to his.

"Do you, Mabel, do you?"

The veil was not over her face now, and she said:

"Yes; oh, yes."

PRAYER ROCK WIDELY KNOWN

Idea of Vermont Citizen Has Been Productive of Far-Reaching and Splendid Results.

On a cliff at the foot of Drake's hill, in Bristol, Vt., is the so-called Prayer rock, which has become widely known during the past 15 years with the increased use of motor cars. It was in 1881 that Dr. Joseph C. Greene, a former citizen of Lincoln, Vt., bethought himself how he might do something to stop the excessive use of hard language indulged in by exasperated farmers seeking to urge their horses and oxen up the steep rise in the main road between Lincoln and Starkboro. He decided that some ethical or religious reminder should be established at the foot of Drake's hill, and finally gave an order to a stonecutter to engrave the Lord's Prayer upon the face of the cliff. As the nature of the rock did not bring out the lettering clearly, Doctor Greene had the text painted white. Every spring the town authorities now repaint the letters. For many years Doctor Greene lived in Buffalo, and there received hundreds of letters from tourists, expressing approval of his prayer rock idea. The carving had the effect desired, for few drivers could but be patient with their beasts of burden in the face of the scriptural quotation on that great tabling.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

To earn money is easy; to save money is easy, too, if you know the secret. To know what you want and what you don't want, that is the secret. Don't argue with yourself when you see a thing. "Can I afford it?" To do this is a sure sign that you can't. Have the strength of character to say, "I can do without it."

Don't try to save money by investing all your spare cash. Keep a reserve in the bank. A banking account is a reference. It gives you a better standing in business and out of it and leads to other good things.

Don't argue with yourself as to whether you can afford to speculate. You can't, if you have to put that question to yourself. Invest instead, if you feel that you must put your money to some use. Investment means income; speculation means profit—or loss—often the latter.

But don't put all your eggs in one basket. In other words, don't keep on making investments in the same company, the same locality, or the same industry.

Statesmen Robbed Russia. The congress of Berlin, consisting of Germany, Austria, France, England, Italy, Russia and Turkey, lasted only one month—from June 13 to July 13, 1878. Russia did not have a "look-in," but was treated in the most arbitrary manner by Bismarck and Beaconsfield.

The peace of San Stefano, although formally concluded between the victorious Russians and the conquered Turks, was torn up and Russia was practically robbed of all her success—given only Bessarabia, taken from Roumania, and the rocky citadel of Kars in Asia Minor. Nations that had not participated in the humbling of Turkey were liberally treated. Bulgaria, north of the Balkans; Serbia, Montenegro, Roumania were declared independent. Not a single "reform" promised by the sublime porte was carried into effect.

The congress of Berlin was nothing but a personal triumph for Beaconsfield and Bismarck and has been the direct cause of at least five subsequent wars.

A Great Remedy. The merits of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea remedy are well known and appreciated, but there is occasionally a man who has no acquaintance with them and should read the following by F. H. Dear, a hotel man at Dupuyer, Mont. "Four years ago I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea remedy with such wonderful results that I have since recommended it to my friends." Adv.

The Best Physic. When you want a pleasant physic try Chamberlain's tablets. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. They are highly prized by people who have become acquainted with their good qualities. They only cost a quarter. Adv.

An Old Fault Finder. An irritable and fault finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels. Adv.

Concerning the cheese that made Limburger famous, a bulletin of the National Geographic society quotes a communication from William Wisner Chapin as follows:

"Limburger is sometimes called the garden of Holland. Of the celebrated relish known as Limburger cheese it has long been a query how an article of food made from delicious material and considered such a delicacy can possess so obnoxious an odor and still retain its self-respect. This peculiarity has made Limburger cheese responsible for many amusing incidents.

"A Dutch-American rural citizen once went to town to make some purchases, among which was some of this odoriferous commodity. For convenience he placed it in a long box in the wagon behind the seat. Happening to stop on the road, an inquisitive acquaintance approached and asked what the box contained.

"In answer he raised the lid and replied, 'I have my grandmother!'
"Well," rejoined the inquirer, as he caught a whiff of the contents, 'she's not in a truce!'"

Gwen's Protege

By WILL T. AMES

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure New-paper Syndicate.)

Miss Gwen Ciphers, daughter of an Indianapolis paint and wall paper merchant and one of the kind of women who name their first borns Archibald if fine and Gwendoline if superfluous, met up with Ras Goora, son of a Calfia rug picker, in Washington square.

Gwen was the ninety-six thousand and first girls' college graduate to come from Indiana to New York to soften the heart of the world with her pen. Ras was the second young man to come from Calfia, Syria, with the definite purpose of acquiring, within six months, capital enough to buy a licorice plantation.

The first Calfia youth to achieve this ambition had been Tufa Goora, Ras's cousin. He had returned, after a brief absence, with a small haul of the golden coin of the Indians, and had purchased the most excellent plantation of the Akah; also the second-hand flivver of the departing French consul.

Edu Karhagian, sloe-eyed daughter of the Armenian doctor, seemed disposed to condescend to Tufa under these circumstances. Ras, too, had journeled hopelessly for Edu. He determined to put over a performance to equal or excel his cousin's. He knew of a better plantation and a newer Ford. The plantation he wanted was so near to town they could run in to the picture theater, if—

And Ras would have made his adventuring voyage to the other side of the world even had he known positively what had more occurred to him as a probability—that Tufa's money had been the fruit of a series of predatory enterprises which made it by the most of good luck that he ever returned to Calfia. He had got out of New York just two jumps ahead of the police.

Ras himself was entirely without prejudice as to the manner in which he might possess himself of some of the pelf of those villainously rich unbelievers in America. His one idea was to get it and get back.

George Washington Ciphers wouldn't have trusted Goora, pere, for a ten-cent paint brush if the latter, per magician's carpet, had suddenly walked in upon him.

Moreover, he would have kept the keenest of eyes on old Ras senior, to see that he didn't steal the knob off the front door as he went out. But Gwen Ciphers didn't inherit either her father's suspicious temperament nor his quick insight into human nature.
Gwen, though she didn't suspect it, took somewhat after her mushy mother.

So when Ras, hat in hand, approached her as she sat on a bench in the historic square planning wonderful things for the world—to be put in her book—Gwen did not shoo him away, but looked at the paper he held out.

Ras had great, soulful eyes, like a deer, and said, so pathetically, "Pis, mees!"

The writing read: "Am strange man in grate country. Please show work. Am awful grate strong."

"What on earth—where did you get this?" Gwen exclaimed. Ras shook his head. "No spik American."

"Well, you poor soul, you've got a nice time ahead of you, sure. But who wrote this?" Ras shook his head again.

Gwen, by speaking very loud indeed, in single words, and making a series of experiments in the sign language, finally got out of Ras the two words, "Cook, ship."

"Well, you come with me," Gwen suddenly exclaimed, and grabbing Ras's coat sleeve with thumb and forefinger she steered him over to the West Eleventh street "pension," where she lived with Madame Blanc, a Swiss conjurress, who knew how to change five cents' worth of cut meat into a most delectable ragout. She dragged him to the basement door, demanded to see Madame at once, and to that lady said: "Here's that house man you wanted. You've simply got to take him."

Madame was a business woman. Ras was without English. He would be worth no more than his board. Ras, his deerlike eyes full of gratitude, yearned to be shown work.

Nobody else ever learned the language as fast as Ras Goora. "These people, I have often heard," explained Gwen, "have a positive genius for tongues." Nevertheless she took a mighty pride in Ras's accomplishment, for he was her pupil. A dozen times a day he was at her door receiving tips—tips on English, that is. In three months he was talking like a phonograph record.

Naturally, Ras explained everything to his benefactress. He was an altru-

QUEER WEAPONS OF DUELISTS

Steel and Ball Not the Only Things Used by Adversaries on "Field of Honor."

In the latter part of the eighteenth century that prince of charlatans, Count Cagliostro, proposed a duel with poisoned pills. The trouble arose because he had called a physician a quack. Cagliostro, on the ground that "a medical controversy should be settled in a medical manner," proposed that two pills, one deadly, the other harmless, should be put in a box and shaken up. Each was to draw a pill and swallow it.

In due course the duel came off.
Cagliostro lived. The other man died.

Some years before the war an American student in Paris, challenged by a Frenchman, chose baseball as his weapon. There was immense feeling, and the American was accused of everything from insanity to cowardice.
The latter on the assumption that no one could possibly be hurt by a baseball. But the American, taking his stand at pitcher's distance, threw with such force and accuracy that the flying sphere struck his opponent between the eyes and laid him out flat, though he recovered later on.

A duel with deadly germs was seriously proposed by a Chicago physician in 1910. The preliminaries were arranged, but at the last moment the challenged party shrank from the ordain.

Those Blundering Authors
We referred recently to one of John Galsworthy's "A flash of beer," now another writer, Arthur J. Rees, saying, "He is, to use an American colloquialism, 'quick on the uptake.'" Tut! Tut, as Barrie lovers know, is Scotch.—Boston Transcript.

Prize Mixer.
"A good mixer, isn't he?" "You bet-cha," replied a citizen of Grudge. "He can tell more funny stories, borrow more money, pay less of it back, get more signers to petitions, be elected to more lodge offices and do less honest work than any other three men in town."—Judge.

Such a long time oppressed by the wicked Turks. For them he had come to America. They had no schools. He had come to beg money from the rich, generous Americans for a great children's school at Beirut.

To cut it short, Gwen possessed eight thousand dollars, an audacious legacy. And the supreme court itself couldn't have convinced her that the book she was writing would fail to bring in other thousands shortly.

She was actually on the point of signing a check for four of the eight thousands, to be handed over to Ras Goora as the nucleus of the Gwendoline Ciphers school, in far off Beirut, when—

Sam Cody, the busiest man in Indianapolis found—or made—time to drop in to call on Miss Ciphers. Sam was all business. He had been everywhere and made money everywhere he went.

But he had leisure enough to keenly desire to make Gwen Ciphers Mrs.
Cody. He jeered at her literary aspirations and her vaunted capacity for "making her own life." Consequently Gwen resented him while she secretly adored him.

He arrived at Miss Ciphers's combination living room about thirty seconds ahead of Ras Goora, the moment of whose coup was ripe. He was shaking hands with Gwen still—that is, he was holding one—when Ras tapped discreetly at the door. Gwen, all smiles of triumph over her Beirut enterprise, invited Ras in. Then she proceeded to tell Sam all about what she and Ras were going to do for the Beirut infants. When she turned to beam on Ras she was amazed to find him, all attempts, staring at Sam as if at a ghost.

At the same instant Sam got to the door first. He grabbed Ras by the collar, spoke rudely to him for about ten seconds, opened the door, chucked him through it and said "Scat!" Ras took the stairs in three downward jumps, yanked the front door open and disappeared.

Some had been an export agent in Calfia six years before. He bought olives and licorice and goat's hair and other things and shipped them to America to people he represented.

He made a pack of money, but not so much that he felt like being robbed.
So when he found Ras Goora, his office boy, whom he had hired because he could speak English, making a wax impression of the key to his petty cash drawer he kicked him into the road, to learn subsequently that as an all-around larconist Ras was Calfia's only rival to his own father, who, it was known, had robbed the poor box of the missionaries' chapel on the day of his own "conversion."

"Listen, Gwen," said Sam, after Ras had scurried away. "You're about as fit to buck against the snides and graffers and four-flushers as I like when you were two-and-a-half. I like you that way. I don't want you to get too blamin' cynical. You will, if you stay here and meet a little million more of Rasess. Tell you something. I want to see that Simms person—your publisher—and I made him admit that he wouldn't publish your book on his own hook in a million years; is only taking it for his percentage on what it costs you. You're coming out to Indianapolis with me and be Mrs. Sam Cody. Sam, he'll be the business agent between you and the world—see?"

And Gwen saw—at last. So she went.

As to the Habit of It.

Creations of habit, such as human beliefs. They carry along with them a lot of the primitive instincts they had in common with the lower creation in the ages past. A habit is only an outgrowth of an instinct. It is the instinct to do the thing that was done before until the doing of it becomes second nature. The leading psychologists, and the lesser as well, for that matter, agree that the reactions of the human system to environment are limitless and therefore the range of things that may be done habitually is limitless.

When Gold Tarnishes.

In the case of a black mark made by a gold pin upon a white cravat, the discoloration is not due to tarnishing but to friction. Gold jewelry sometimes tarnishes in the shop through being wrapped in cheap tissue paper, placed in boxes with inferior linings or tied up with rubber bands. It will sometimes tarnish in sympathy with unacquainted silver exposed in the same showcase.

Full Duty Not Being Done.

Much has been done for the child, much is now being done, but the best is not being done. It is toward the best that all social endeavor should aim, and short of the best neither the state nor the individual should rest satisfied.—W. Clark Hall.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

Perhaps He Has Repented.

A funny one happened the other day in the office of a justice of the peace.
A young couple were being married, surrounded by several friends. As usual, the ritual came to that place where the justice said:

"Does anyone present know of any reason why this couple should not become man and wife?"

And to everybody's amazement, the groom spoke up, "I do."

As he said afterwards, "that's what comes of too many rehearsals."

SAVED TWO FAMOUS PICTURES

Old Masters Taken by British Officer From the Ruins of Ypres Cathedral.

The king of the Belgians will shortly have returned to him two famous pictures which were rescued, four years ago, from Ypres cathedral. It appears that during the bombardment of Ypres in 1915 a young British artillery officer noticed inside the cathedral, which was being heavily shelled, that the only things not shattered by German fire were two large Flemish masters, dated 1600, hanging some 20 feet high on the walls. How to get them and save them for Belgium was the question which immediately presented itself. The officer called two private soldiers to help him, and with the aid of some long gas pipes which had been blown down by the German fire, and two large hooks, the pictures were lowered to the ground. The officer, Lieutenant Daniels, R. A., then cut the pictures out of their frames and put them in a large sack, which he used for a time as a bed. In the end he took them to London, where, with the approval of the Belgian minister, they have been placed on exhibition prior to being returned to King Albert at Brussels.

His Complaint.

"Say, looky yur!" began a citizen of the Sandy Mush region, entering the Palace drug store in Tunlinville. "You fellers sold me this yur rat pizon last week, and three or four of my children got hold of the box and ett up right smart of the stuff. It didn't 'pear to damage 'em none, and I'll be dogged if I don't believe I've been swindled." —Judge.

What a beautiful world this would be if flowers only grew to resemble their pictures in the seed catalogue.

Don't Poison Baby.

Forty years ago almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Fond Mother—While playing doctor with his little playmates, he said:
"Gentlemen, before we begin to op-feet. I'll get the three cents out of

When He Did It.

"From what you tell me, Sam, you have been a busy man all your life?"

"Yes, sah; yes, sah."

"You've done a great deal in your time and day Sam, I guess."

"Yes, sah. But I've done a good lot in mah day but it wuz in de boss's time."

If people only realized the health-destroy-

A. M. LEWIS, Druggist.

IS THIS YOUR EXPERIENCE?

Many Grayling People Are Afflicted With Annoying Kidney Ills.

Are you bothered with too frequent action of the kidneys? Are the secretions highly colored—do they contain sediment—burn and scald in voiding? These are all signs of kidney sickness and should not be neglected. Grayling people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches and your kidneys are weak you will find no better recommended remedy.

Peter Wm. Christenson, Chestnut St., Grayling, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times in the past, getting them at Lewis' Drug Store and they have always proved of great benefit to me. When my back has been weak or lame and the kidney secretions have been too frequent in passage, I have used Doan's kidney pills. They have always fixed me up in good shape."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Christenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

The person finding a watch on the Lake road last Saturday, please return same to this office or to Rasmusson, phone 351.

CRAWFORD COUNTY AGENTS COLUMN

Last year in this column the County Agent took occasion to call attention to the desirability of using muck for bedding and passing it out with the manure on the lands, thus getting advantage of a cheap sanitary bedding, which is better than straw, and with straw at the present price much more economical. Aside from this it multiplies the amount and value of the manure.

At the Soils conference held at the Michigan Agricultural College on August first the value of muck with manure applied to land was shown very forcibly. Could the farmers of this section only see these demonstrations they would do more to convince them of the profit to be derived from such a practice than all the talking and writing that can be done by County Agents or Extension workers.

Will not some farmer take this matter up and give it a trial? At this time when the muck is dry and easy to get at, it would not be such a hard job to draw up some and place in a shed where it will be kept dry and use it this winter with cattle.

The Soils demonstrations put on at the Roscommon County farm with sweet clover, Mammoth clover and alfalfa are doing well, considering the season of high winds and drought. The Mammoth clover is looking exceptionally well and is one of the finest stands in the county. It must be borne in mind that this stand is on a piece of sandy soil that had been run that it refused to grow June grass. The plot was limed at the rate of two tons per acre and inoculated. Prior to this a good firm seed bed was obtained by thorough rolling and dragging.

The County Agent on a trip last week has been examining the grasshopper belt and finds that as a general rule the main body has moved southwards about 24 miles this season and has moved eastward nearly as far. There are some scattering flocks even farther south and east. Clear into Gladwin county they are playing havoc and promise to get worse for several years to come, with ordinary seasons. They are like a forest fire and just as destructive wherever they work. When they have attained a certain numerical degree they increase at an amazing rate, and it is only by the hardest work and utmost co-operation that they are going to be got under control. Seventy-five per cent of the farmers have not yet awakened to the necessity of prompt and continuous action. They seem to think in spite of all that has been said and written that the fighting of grasshoppers is a chore that can be done at convenience and once in a while. They are just about to get a rude awakening and will find that it is a daily chore that is just as important to do as to milk the cows, and that occasionally if one or the other had to be missed that it would pay better to miss the milking. This may seem strong but it is very little too strong if any. Even so it is not question exactly of grasshopper eradication but of grasshopper control, for to control them and keep them down enough to escape the enormous loss they entail when let go unrestricted, is about all we can hope for until that time comes, be it soon or late when nature will eradicate them.

The Community of Nester was organized in the Roscommon County Farm Bureau work last Tuesday night July 29th with projects and commitments as follows:

Organization & Membership, chairman, J. A. Benmark, Butman, Mich; Records, T. A. Michener, Verneker, Mich; and grasshopper control, Sam Kennedy, Gladwin, Mich; R. E. 5.

The meeting was well attended, there being about fifty per cent of the farmers and their wives in the community present. It looks as though this community while late in organizing bid fair to surpass some of the earlier organized communities in point of interest in the work.
